Rosaries as Decorations

Question: I've seen people hang rosaries over the rear-view mirrors in their cars. Is it OK to do that?

Answer:

The practice of hanging a rosary or a religious medal off of the rearview mirror of one's car is a fairly popular custom across many cultures. While there is no particular rule approving or condemning this practice, we should also be mindful of the respect and reverence due to religious objects and devotional items (i.e. sacramentals).

An important point to consider would be the reason why one chooses to place a rosary or religious medal in our cars. Is it a reminder of the protection and intercession of Mary and the saints? Does it encourage us to be mindful of God's presence, even in such a mundane task as driving? Is it an outward expression of our more private devotions?

One advantage of having a rosary or religious medal in our cars is that it can also serve as a reminder to pray when we travel, asking for protection for ourselves and for other motorists or commuters. Certainly, invoking the protection and prayers of the saints is a wonderful practice for families, helping to reinforce our belief in the communion of saints and the care and concern we owe to one another.

Halloween is very much an American holiday thanks largely to waves of Catholic immigration to the United States. For instance, the English, Irish and French brought with them various customs and feasts. Dressing up for Halloween comes from the French, Jack-o-Lanterns come from the Irish and the English begged from door to door promising to pray for the departed loved ones of those who gave them treats in return. These customs have become entangled over the years into what we know Halloween to be today.

The Rosary was JP II's favorite prayer and he made time to pray all 15 decades every single day.

Hail Holy Queen

Hail, holy queen, mother of mercy, our life our sweetness and our hope. To thee do we cry, poor banished children of Eve; to thee do we send up our sighs, mourning and weeping in this valley of tears. Turn then, O most gracious advocate, thine eyes of mercy toward us; and after this our exile, show unto us the blessed fruit of thy womb, Jesus. O clement, O loving, O sweet virgin Mary. Pray for us, O holy mother of God, that we may be made worthy of the promises of Christ. Amen
